3. The Mitsui management objectives are defined as Mitsui company officers and employees, while working under the “Mitsui management principles,” fulfilling the expectations and trust placed in us by our stakeholders, including shareholders, clients, employees as well as consumers and regional communities; proactively pursuing Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) oriented management; and, as a result, increasing corporate value from both the quantitative and qualitative aspects in a sustainable manner.
4. In order to attain our management objectives based on the “Mitsui management principles,” we aim to optimize business oversight and auditing systems. We provide for the guidelines for such as “Corporate governance principles” in Chapter 1. Also, in order to attain our management objectives, we have established the corporate internal control mechanism conducted under the systems provided for in the corporate governance principles. We provide for this as “Internal control principles” in Chapter 2. We present both these principles together as an overall image of Mitsui corporate governance. In Chapter 3, furthermore, in relation to overall Mitsui corporate governance, we state the “Necessary systems to ensure appropriate operations,” as provided for in the Companies Act of Japan.

Chapter 1: Corporate Governance Principles

I. General rules

1. Objectives

The objectives of these principles are to establish the management oversight and auditing systems necessary for attaining our management objectives based on the “Mitsui management principles” and to clarify the role and conditions of their component parts.

2. Scope of application

These principles establish the principles related to Mitsui corporate governance and also provide guidelines for promoting the consolidated management of the Mitsui Group to Mitsui affiliated companies.

3. Definition and basic framework of corporate governance

- (1) Mitsui adopts a framework of corporate governance referred to as a system of company with Audit & Supervisory Board. Accordingly, we define corporate governance as “a framework under which the Directors, in their capacity as members of the Board of Directors, oversee the execution of business of those who execute business of the Company, comprising Representative Directors, Directors, and Managing Officers (collectively, hereinafter referred to as “the management”); and the Audit & Supervisory Board Members, in their capacity as an independent body, audit the execution of duties of the Directors and ensure that the management is improved or renewed as necessary.” We also define internal control as “a framework for the management to control and supervise our business execution organization,” and clarify the content of that role in Chapter 2.
- (2) While heightening the effectiveness of the auditing function of the Audit & Supervisory Board Members, we also judge that the management based on Internal Directors well versed in company operations is necessary for a company operating as a general trading house, and while adopting a framework of corporate governance under the system of a company with Audit & Supervisory Board, we will attain highly effective corporate governance through the establishment of various advisory committees with the participation of External Directors and Audit & Supervisory Board Members in order to ensure “improved transparency and accountability, along with “the clarification of the division of roles between the oversight activities and executive activities of the management.”

By implementing the following two activities either individually or together, the management and managers monitor, evaluate and correct internal controls on an ongoing basis.

(1) Day-to-day monitoring

Monitoring whether internal controls are effectively operated in each organization on a day-to-day basis, including appropriate approval procedures, accurate records and compliance with laws and regulations

(2) Independent evaluations

Reviews of design evaluation and the effectiveness of operations over a fixed period, for control activities in part or whole, conducted by the management on a periodic or as-needed basis from a standpoint independent of day-to-day operations

6. Response to IT

“Response to IT” refers to the accurate and timely transmission of large amounts and wide range of information generated in line with Mitsui’s large scale, diverse business scope, areas and operating regions, and making further use of information technology in order to ensure necessary data security.

Furthermore, in designing the internal controls related to information technology, consideration is given to overall information technology controls, including application development and change control, information technology asset management, infrastructure management (change control), security control, fault control, operation and maintenance control and control of work outsourced to external contractors.

IV. Evaluation of internal control over financial reporting

Based on the Financial Instruments and Exchange Act of Japan, Mitsui must file Annual Securities Reports (Yukashoken Hokokusho) and also management assessments and external auditing with respect to internal control over financial reportings. As a result, concerning internal control over financial reportings, unlike other internal controls the Company assumes direct and clear external reporting responsibilities.

With regard to the management's assessments of internal control over financial reportings, in line with directives and supervision from the management, along with the documentation and evaluation policies listed elsewhere, each organization carries out documentation and self-assessment regarding the design and operation of internal control over financial reportings, and an independent organization within the Company conducts evaluation.

V. Roles and responsibilities for internal controls

Internal controls are established, as well as designed and operated by all component staff members in each organization, and Mitsui clarifies the roles and responsibilities of officers and employees of the Company and of related organizations with regard to internal controls in the following manner. The officers and employees of the Company and related organizations listed below must liaise accordingly to pursue the said roles and responsibilities.

1. Roles and responsibilities of the Board of Directors

Based on the Companies Act of Japan, other related laws and regulations, along with the Company articles of incorporation and other internal rules, the Board of Directors implements the basic design of Mitsui internal controls on an internal and external consolidated basis, and assumes the role and responsibility for the design, operation and assessment of internal controls. 3. Roles and responsibilities of the Audit & Supervisory Board Members

As part of the auditing of the execution of duties of the Board of Directors, the Audit & Supervisory Board Members, from a standpoint that is independent from the management's executive functions, audit the design and operational status of internal controls by the Board of Directors, and report those results to the Board of Directors as necessary, while also offering advice and recommendations on improving internal controls.

Other officers and employees of the Company also appropriately submit data that contributes to monitoring, verifying, and evaluating the design and operational status of internal controls by the Audit & Supervisory Board Members.

4. Roles and responsibilities of managers

Within the scope of the authority or duties assigned or delegated by the management or other managers, managers assume the role and responsibility for establishing and operating internal controls related to the organization and/or duties for which they are responsible. In concrete terms managers enforce the following items.

- In line with policies and directives from the management or other managers, managers decide policies including measures against specific serious risk related to the business activities of the organization and/or duties for which they are responsible, and direct themselves and the staff they manage to concrete actions, which they also enforce.
- Based on reports received from the staff they manage, and their own monitoring, managers collect data in an ongoing fashion, and evaluate the staff they manage on the execution of their duties and the result of risk responses.
- If deficiencies arise in internal control systems, managers come up with measures, either themselves or through the staff they manage, at the same time as reporting on the content of those deficiencies and corrective measures to the management, either themselves or through other managers, and make efforts to follow up after the fact.

- Managers also give due consideration to changes in risk factors in line with changes in the internal and external environment surrounding the organizations and duties over which they hold jurisdiction, and implement reviews of control activities periodically or on an as-needed basis, propose appropriate improvement measures to other managers, gaining their endorsement and enforcing these measures either themselves or through the staff they manage.

In the case of such reports and demands for improvements from the External Auditors, the management immediately moves to improve the deficiencies and weaknesses in those internal controls.

VI. Handling of affiliated companies

Among the affiliated companies, Mitsui

- Requires subsidiaries to design and operate internal control systems in line with these principles within a rational scope, and requires the adoption of individual internal control procedures and systems along with accounting processes and reporting methods to an extent condoned by legal systems in each country in which the Company operates.
- Coordinates with other investors to encourage associated companies to design and operate appropriate internal control systems in line with these principles.

In instances where officers and employees of Mitsui obtain information regarding illegal or illicit activities related to an affiliated company, they make a report of the facts to the management and the responsible managers (hereinafter referred to as “Supervising Officers”) of the said affiliate, in line with the Business Conduct Guidelines for Employees and Officers of Mitsui & Co., Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as “Business Conduct Guidelines.”)

Chapter 3. Necessary systems to ensure appropriate operations

Mitsui defines its “necessary systems to ensure appropriate operations,” as provided for in the Companies Act of Japan, as follows.

- I. Systems to ensure that performance of duties by its Directors and employees (Managing Officers and employees) complies with laws and regulations and its articles of incorporation
 1. Mitsui recognizes “compliance” in the sense of strict observance of laws and regulations and ethical standards as one of its most important priorities. The Company establishes Business Conduct Guidelines in order to achieve this objective, and requires compliance with this guideline by all of its officers and employees, including Mitsui’s secondees to other companies, secondees working at Mitsui, employees on a short-term contracts, administrative contract staff and temporary staff.
 2. Mitsui establishes a Compliance Committee headed by the Chief Compliance Officer (hereinafter referred to as “CCO”) appointed by the Board of Directors, and comprising of the General Managers of the relevant Corporate Staff Divisions and two Chief Operating Officers of the Business Units nominated by CCO. The objective of the Compliance Committee is to establish a group-wide compliance system both in Japan and overseas, as well as maintaining and improving the effectiveness of that system. In principle, meetings are held twice per year or at other times as deemed necessary.
 3. In order to thoroughly inculcate and improve compliance awareness, Mitsui takes as many opportunities as possible to conduct and enhance its compliance training for its officers and employees throughout the Company, including conducting induction training for new recruits, seminars for employees taking up overseas positions, and training for company officers seconded to affiliated companies. The Strategic & Administrative Legal Division and Business Legal Division consult and advise on the Company’s various legal transactions, and in addition conducts research studies as required on the enactment, amendment and repeal of laws and regulations in the countries in which Mitsui operates in liaison with external attorneys, reporting this information to Mitsui’s officers and employees.
 4. Mitsui establishes several whistle-blowing avenues for its employees to report or consult on compliance issues (hereinafter referred to as “whistle-blowing avenue”), including access to external attorneys and third party organizations. External attorneys and third party organizations appointed by Mitsui are allowed to act as the whistle-blowing avenue for Mitsui's affiliated companies in Japan. Anonymity is ensured in the case of communications with external attorneys and third party organizations to allow the system to work. Mitsui prohibits retaliation and treating a whistleblower disadvantageously due to the reason of the whistleblowing itself, and thoroughly makes this a known internal fact.

5. Compliance violations are dealt with strictly and fairly, including disciplinary action as provided for in the Employment Regulations.
6. Directors and employees, in the course of their duties, both oversee and are overseen by their colleagues with regard to the observance of laws and regulations, articles of incorporation, internal rules and regulations. Moreover, audits of the compliance status of the entire Company and its major affiliated companies are periodically carried out, and by way of this, the impact of such on Company management is evaluated. In addition, the Internal Auditing Division, under the direct control of the President, assesses the maintenance and status of internal control in terms of operational effectiveness and efficiency, reliability in financial reporting, and legal compliance; it also reviews the adequacy and efficiency of risk management. Based on its findings, the Division then provides advice and recommendations for improvements.
7. The Audit & Supervisory Board Members operate as an independent body under a mandate from the shareholders, auditing the Directors' execution of their duties. In doing so, the Audit & Supervisory Board Members monitor the level of compliance by Directors and employees with laws and regulations, Articles of Incorporation, and internal rules and regulations.
8. An appropriate number of External Directors are appointed to reinforce auditing of the Board of Directors. To enhance the objectivity and transparency of management, a Governance Committee and other advisory committees are in place to assess the status and direction of corporate governance in Mitsui as a whole from the perspective of External Members.

II. Systems to store and control information related to duties performed by the Directors

1. Mitsui places the officer responsible for its Corporate Staff Divisions in charge of the storage and control of information relating to the performance of duties by the Directors, and stores and controls significant data related to the performance of duties as outlined below, and related materials, in hard-copy or electronic format. Directors and Audit & Supervisory Board Members may view these documents immediately

III. Regulations and systems related to management of risk of loss

1. Each of Head Office Chief Operating Officers and Regional Chief Operating Officers manages business within the scope of the authority granted to them based on the various rules on delegation of authority, including the Rules on Delegation of Authority for Head Office Chief Operating Officers, and manages risk of loss ("Risks") relating to their businesses within the scope of their authority. Transactions that exceed the authority delegated to each of Head Office Chief Operating Officers and Regional Chief Operating Officers require approval via Mitsui's internal approval system, and they manage risks pertaining to the implementation of transactions so approved.

2. The Corporate Staff Divisions establish an integrated risk management system to manage the various quantitative and qualitative risks which Mitsui faces on a consolidated basis (internal and external). This risk management system is centered around the Executive Committee (which assumes the role and responsibilities for the design of an integrated internal control system as well as maintaining, and improving the effectiveness of, that system) and the Portfolio Management Committee (which is responsible for company-wide risk management related to investments and loans), and each of the Corporate Staff Divisions cooperates by establishing various internal rules for risk management within their respective risk management areas, as well as conducting prior investigations and after-the-fact monitoring.

Furthermore, the Corporate Staff Divisions formulate company-wide criteria relating to investing, such as investment criteria and withdrawal and carry out appropriate investment management based on these criteria.

3. In serious circumstances, pursuant to the Rules on the Crisis Response Headquarters, Mitsui establishes a Crisis Response Headquarters, headed by the President, as an organization to limit damage and loss by rapidly determining and implementing concrete measures to respond to crises appropriately. In addition, in the event of an emergency such as an earthquake or terrorist attack, pursuant to the Rules on Business Continuity Management in Case of Disasters, Mitsui establishes an Emergency Response Headquarters headed by the Managing Director of the Human Resources & General Affairs Division I and the Human Resources & General Affairs Division II, as an organization to ensure continued operation and early recovery.

IV. Systems to ensure effective and efficient execution of Directors' duties

Within such system, Mitsui's Representative Directors make final decision in the best interests of the Company, following deliberations conducted by the relevant Corporate

Staff Divisions on their capacities and specialist areas.

6. Medium-term management plan: Mitsui develops and implements business strategy and management policy in accordance with its medium-term management plan and annual business plan; regular verification of the state of progress of these by the Board of Directors thereby ensures efficient execution of operations.

V. Systems to ensure proper operations in the corporate group

1. Based on the general principle of the autonomy of its affiliated companies, Mitsui appoints supervising officers in charge of its affiliated companies, and implements Rules on Duties of Supervising Officers of Affiliated Companies to govern their duties. Mitsui exercises suitable management of affiliated companies in the following manner:

- (1) Staying abreast of the operating results and financial conditions of its affiliated companies, and establishing and maintaining appropriate group-wide management frameworks.
- (2) Exercising its legal and/or contractual rights as an investor to require the management of its affiliated companies to maintain and operate internal rules and regulations at suitable levels. Similarly, Mitsui requires its affiliated companies to report on important matters, including business reports, financial reports, and auditing reports, and further, participates in their management and governance as appropriate to its equity investor status in terms of the appointment and removal of officers and profit distribution.
- (3) Identifying and measuring the presence of significant risks at its affiliated companies, and responding with ongoing organizational controls.

2. Mitsui requires its major affiliated companies to conduct regular audits to check observance of laws and regulations and internal rules and regulations in their businesses, and evaluates the impact of those results on company management.

3. Mitsui utilizes its legal or contractual right to place an appropriate whistle-blowing avenue for Mitsui's affiliated companies, and to prohibit retaliation and treating a whistleblower disadvantageously due to the reason of the whistleblowing itself. Furthermore, Mitsui allows external attorneys and third party organizations appointed by Mitsui to act as the whistle-blowing avenue for Mitsui's affiliated companies in Japan. In the event that an affiliated company detects a violation of compliance, or actions which may be suspected of such, on the part of Mitsui officers or employees, or in the event of being ordered to carry out violations of compliance, or actions which may be suspected of such, the matter may be reported to the Mitsui Compliance

Committee, through the whistle-blowing avenues, either internally or externally.

VI. Items relating to employees assigned to assist the Audit & Supervisory Board

Members, the independence of such employees from the Directors, and ensuring practicality for instructions given by Audit & Supervisory Board Members to assigned employees

1. In order to increase the effectiveness of audits by the Audit & Supervisory Board

Members and allow the smooth execution of auditing duties, Mitsui establishes an Audit & Supervisory Board Member Division which is resourced with three or more full-time staff with adequate knowledge and capabilities who are under the sole direction of Mitsui's Audit & Supervisory Board Members to assist its Audit & Supervisory Board Members in the execution of the entirety of their duties.

2. In order to ensure the independence of the Audit & Supervisory Board Member Division from the Directors, the organization and assignment (including transfers, personnel evaluations and disciplinary action) of employees of the Audit & Supervisory Board Member Division is determined by the responsible Representative Director with the approval of the Audit & Supervisory Board Members.

VII. Systems for reporting to the Audit & Supervisory Board Members

1. Apart from meetings of the Board of Directors, the Audit & Supervisory Board Members may attend Executive Committee and other material meetings and committees in order to stay informed of the important decision making processes, and the status of the Company's business operations.

2. The Audit & Supervisory Board Members are provided with principal "internal approval" and other important in-house documentation, and have immediate access to related documentation and materials related thereto upon request.

3. The Audit & Supervisory Board Members have regular meetings with the Chair, President and other Directors, Managing Officers, the heads of the Corporate Staff Divisions, and the general manager of the Internal Auditing Division, and may receive reports, including those items related to affiliated companies, from both management and employees as and when needed. In particular, the Audit & Supervisory Board Members periodically meet with the CCO about compliance related information.

4. In the event of observing a development with potential to significantly influence or damage the Company, Directors immediately report the situation to the Audit & Supervisory Board.

When necessary, employees may engage in whistleblowing to Audit & Supervisory Board Members on matters relating to compliance.

5. Mitsui's Audit & Supervisory Board Members conduct audits of the state of management of its major affiliated companies through visiting those companies, and collaborating daily and meeting with the Audit & Supervisory Board Members of those companies.

6. Mitsui prohibits treating a whistleblower to the Audit & Supervisory Board Members disadvantageously due to the reason of the whistleblowing itself, and thoroughly makes this a known internal fact. Furthermore, Mitsui utilizes its legal or contractual right to prohibit a whistleblower at an affiliated company from being treated disadvantageously due to the reason of the whistleblowing itself.

VIII. Other systems to ensure effective auditing by the Audit & Supervisory Board Members

1. The Directors familiarize themselves with auditing standards for the Audit & Supervisory Board Members, which provide for the job responsibilities, approach, auditing systems, auditing standards and action guidelines for the Audit & Supervisory Board Members. The Directors recognize the importance and usefulness of auditing by the Audit & Supervisory Board Members, and maintain an appropriate environment for corporate auditing.

2. Where the Audit & Supervisory Board Members deem it necessary, following discussion with the Representative Directors, they request the cooperation of the Internal Auditing Division for specific tasks.

5. Mitsui is responsible for the costs associated with the execution of duties by the Audit & Supervisory Board Members, and annually budgets a certain amount for this purpose.

IX. Systems and basic philosophy related to the rejection of antisocial forces

1. Mitsui reacts resolutely toward antisocial forces, and does not, as a matter of principle, conduct business with antisocial forces or with parties that have relations with antisocial forces.

2. Mitsui specifies the abovementioned principle in its Business Conduct Guidelines, and makes this thoroughly known to its officers and employees. To reject antisocial forces, and to make this a company-wide stance, insertion of a clause within contracts rejecting antisocial forces is encouraged, and by placing a response unit, a system enabling routine coordination with external professionals, such as police and lawyers, is established.

End.
